ABOUT DBT:

Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT) is an integrative, evidence-based treatment which synthesizes acceptance-oriented therapy with the precision of cognitive and behavioral therapy. Dozens of controlled studies support the effectiveness of DBT with adolescents and adults affected by emotion dysregulation. DBT outcomes show increased safety and stability, maximized participation in treatment, and significant improvement in mood, relationships and job functioning. DBT includes 5 essential components: 1) Skill training, 2) Skill generalization (including skill coaching), 3) Individual therapy/motivation, 4) Family or other adjunctive interventions, and 5) Consultation or treatment team.

ABOUT THIS COURSE:

The course consists of 10 days of training in four parts, over seven months, providing up to 60 CE credits. This comprehensive DBT training will address all 5 components of DBT and help you to develop a DBT program in your work setting. Program development and adaptations will be discussed for diverse populations, including (but not limited to) complex diagnoses, cognitive abilities, developmental level, and social support structure. Parts I and II will cover theory and conceptualization of the model, structure of treatment, skills for individual and group sessions, and how to function as a consultation team. Didactic training as well as demonstration, video of sessions, and supervised practice will be included in each part of the intensive training. Parts III and IV include additional supervision, consultation, and training for the use of the model with parents and families. This comprehensive DBT training will address all 5 components of DBT, and help you to develop a DBT program in your work setting.

AUDIENCE:

This presentation is intended for psychologists, other licensed mental health providers, and graduate students of psychology.
